Our Story

We met in our first year of college at Grand Valley State University in 2003. After nine years of dating, we said "I Do" in 2012. What we love about one another (other than we think each other is pretty cute) is that we are each other's best friend. We are one another's "person." We run to each other with our questions, concerns, troubles, and most importantly, we celebrate our joy together. By no means, are we perfect, but it is through those imperfections that grows our love for each other every day.

What Brought Us to Adoption

Over the last five years, we have received nudges and signs guiding and leading us to adoption. After countless signs, one day we looked at each other and said "Are we truly listening?" Admittedly, we had all sorts of feelings about these signs from fear to excitement to nervousness. After praying and listening, we decided together to begin the adoption journey.

Our Hopes, Open Adoption & Relationship with Birth Family

It is through open adoption we can grow and nurture new relationships and support each other. We believe that the birth family should be a part of our child's upbringing. We believe that a child who has a relationship with their birth family can walk with confidence knowing they are loved. We would be honored to meet you. We are here for you during this journey and we are excited to learn more about you.
